IMMIGRATION

In the 1800s and 1900s, many people moved to the United States. They were looking for better lives for their families.

Many of these immigrants were excited, but some were scared about what their new lives would be like.

Some young boys became newsies. Newsies sold newspapers on street corners in big cities.

MOBSTERS IN AMERICA

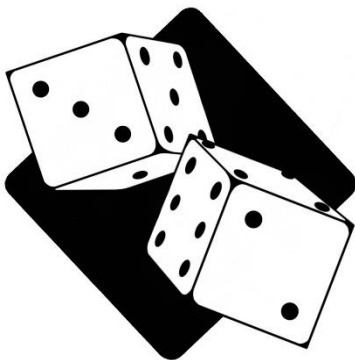

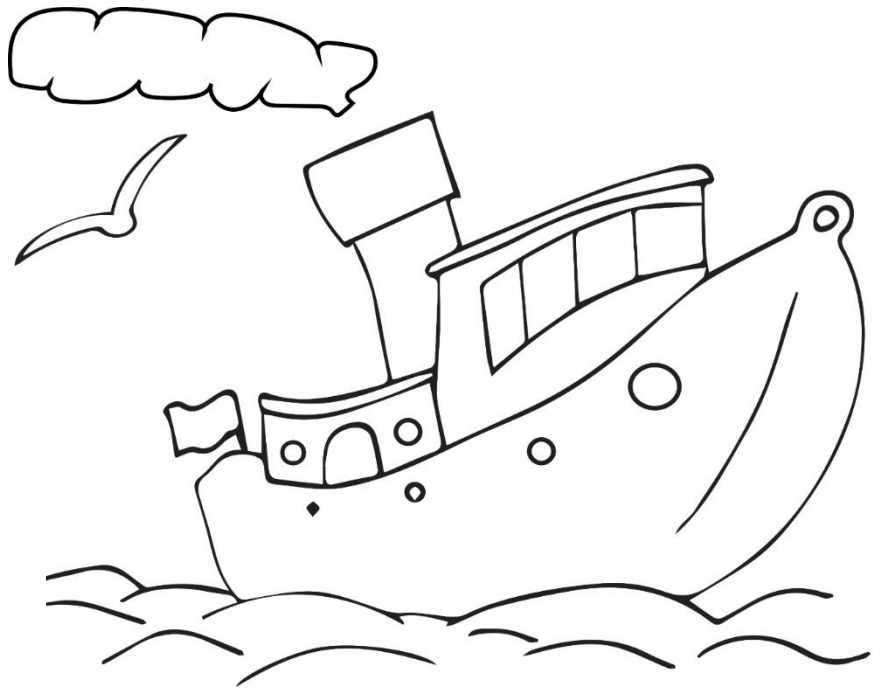

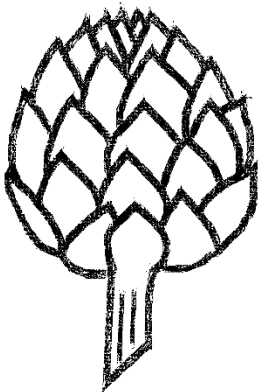

Most of the new immigrants found jobs and settled down. But some of them fell into a life of crime. They became mobsters.

Some mobsters stole money from other people.

Some sold things like beer and artichokes for more money than it was worth.

Some smuggled things into the United States on boats.

Others ran illegal casino games.
